Owen Media Expands Seattle Office with Two New Hires

SEATTLE – March 31, 2006 – Owen Media, Inc., a Seattle-based high technology public relations agency, today announced that Christin Evans and Ron Schott have joined the team as account coordinators.

"Christin and Ron will bring great experience and fresh ideas to Owen Media," said Paul Owen, president of Owen Media. "They reflect Owen Media's ability to provide the best talent, skill and motivation for its clients."

Evans and Schott will provide support in organizing and coordinating administrative aspects of Owen Media's accounts.

Evans was most recently an intern at Publicis Dialog, where she provided support for the marketing communications team. She has also interned for King County Animal Control, where she helped organize events and create communications materials. At the University of Washington, Evans served as the Public Relations Student Society of America chapter president. Evans holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in communications with a focus in public relations and a minor in Spanish from the University of Washington.

Schott comes to Owen Media after an internship at Vander Howen Public Relations of Mercer Island, Wash. He was also the president and public relations chairman for the Washington State Chapter of the Delta Chi Fraternity, which he continues to advise on communication issues. Schott has a Bachelor of Arts degree in communication with an emphasis in public relations from the Edward R. Murrow School of Communication at Washington State University and a minor in political science with an emphasis in public administration.

Owen Media has offices located in Seattle, Wash. and Portland, Ore. The agency provides public relations consulting to high-tech companies. Owen Media's clients include ClearSpeed, the InfiniBand Trade Association, Childhaven and Mandriva. To learn more about Owen Media, visit the company Website at www.owenmedia.com.
